The move comes after President Barack Obama requested an increase in domestic spending for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, while the shutdown and partial government shutdown of 2011 were causing Congress to consider raising the federal gas tax as the number of vehicles in the United States increased and spending fell. Murray's announcement was one of many attempts Tuesday between the two sides of the aisle to try to avoid shutdown after March, which had grown more common.. The reason I know it's something that can be confusing and weird is because the Japanese culture I'm talking about is different from our own. And that's not something I've said in any of the posts, it's just something that I've heard repeatedly from Japanese-Americans who have been to the US over the past 5 or 6 years. I 7.0M 13 Jul 2013 1:15:40 2.7 MB.. The agreement is also set to make some minor reforms for entitlement programs like Medicare. The bill has about $900 billion more in fiscal 2014, and it would require lawmakers to raise the nation's credit rating to AA-minus. Also on Tuesday, House Minority Leader Nancy Pelosi (D-CA) joined other Democrats in seeking $75 billion in Medicare cuts within two years, while the Democrats in the Senate were hoping for $150 billion.. If you read my posts, or the previous posts in the series, you know for a fact this is not meant as an attack on Japanese culture — and I am not arguing in any way that American culture is bad or inferior to anything that does exist in this country. Some of my opinions are the views of experts, and some of it is just what I really felt as I was making these comments about Japanese culture: it's part of our culture. Just because someone isn't familiar with Japanese culture, doesn't mean what they think about my views isn't going to be wrong. It's also probably not going to be popular with everyone you meet. So please, don't go off on rant about Japanese culture being inferior to the culture that's actually here or even worse, that's wrong in some way.
